Production of dresses is given as a donation to Institutions in Puerto Rico or abroad.
Country	United States

Project Description

Throughout these 10 years, this project has been transformed, modified and conditioned to the needs of the volunteers under the consultation and participation of those involved. We have met in garages, courtyards, community centers and homes. We have made food sales, flea markets and other activities to collect the materials to make the outfits for the girls. We believe in innovation and creativity to make a feeling of help become an action with tangible results. We believe in the resilience and service capacity of volunteers and we will take a step towards the inclusion of technology for better communication and exposure of the project in social networks.
